Intro and Applicant Information

WPI's GoATeach Robert Noyce Scholarship program is a National Science Foundation (NSF) program dedicated to supporting undergraduate STEM students interested in becoming math, science, or technology/engineering middle and high school teachers. The award consists of a maximum of $10,000 per semester during the junior and senior years.

The scholarship requires that recipients commit to completing one year of full-time teaching in a high-need school district for every semester of support received to be completed within eight years after graduation. (Thus two years of scholarship would be a 4 year teaching commitment.) If not met, the scholarship reverts to a repayable loan.
