HERBERT F. TAYLOR AWARD FOR DISTINGUISHED SERVICE TO WPI

Len Redon, your commitment to and affection for WPI is evident in everything you do on behalf of your alma mater. We are proud to honor you today.

As a student, you took advantage of WPI's vibrant arts and cultural life. You participated in the radio station, Newspeak, Masque, and Camera Club. These experiences cultivated in you a deep appreciation for the arts. Today you remain an avid musician, even as you have pursued an impressive career that includes leadership roles at Eastman Kodak, Paychex, and your current position as deputy mayor of the City of Rochester, N.Y.

As an alumnus, you have always sought ways to give back to WPI. You have served as a Class Agent and volunteered for the Admissions Office to help recruit students who are best able to take advantage of all that a WPI education has to offer. As a member of the Arts & Sciences Advisory Board, you are helping WPI to grow and strengthen these dynamic programs.

In addition, you have served WPI as a trustee, helping guide the university at the highest levels. You have shared your experience and knowledge as a member of the board's Academic Planning, Budget and Finance, Facilities, Student Affairs, and Executive committees. Today you continue your service as trustee emeritus.

Len Redon, we are fortunate to count you among the WPI family. The WPI

Alumni Association is pleased to recognize you for your remarkable commitment with the Herbert F. Taylor Award for Distinguished Service to WPI.
