The DEI Team is delighted to officially announce a new educational series for the WPI Community: The Community and Belonging Lab. Community development and relationship building are foundational to our culture and values at WPI. This is especially true now that the majority of our work/learning is virtual, and many of us continue to experience social isolation. Inspired by collective actions to foster community through virtual connections and reimagine work amidst numerous ongoing global crises, The Community and Belonging Lab is a series of interactive, educational workshops aimed at providing WPI community members with practical ways to incorporate DEI principles and practices into one’s personal and professional life. We invite you to engage in upcoming Community and Belonging Lab workshops and resources on mental health, community building, identity development, medical advocacy, and holistic strategies to foster greater work-life harmony. Some examples of the educational opportunities that will be provided through CBL are:

- 'How To' Workshops
- Storytelling and Narrative Identity Development
- Panel Discussions and Forums
- Instructional Advocacy Strategies
- Community Building/Connection Opportunities
