Computational Science Graduate Fellowships	Since 1991, the DOE CSGF has supported doctoral students in fields of study that advance the use of high-performance computing (HPC) to solve specific, complex science and engineering problems. These fields span science and technology, ranging from engineering to biological sciences and from astrophysics to geophysics. DOE CSGF now accepts doctoral students engaged in traditional, application-focused computational science research and those pursuing applied mathematics, statistics or computer science research enabling the use of emerging high-performance computing (HPC) systems without a specific application. Together, they will meet the DOE's growing needs to build and efficiently operate the latest, most powerful HPC systems and apply those systems to problems of national importance.	Applied Mathematics, Astrophysics, Chemical Engineering, Chemistry, Computer Science, Environmental Science, Life Sciences, Machine Learning, Materials Science, Mechanical Engineering, Physics	1/12/2022	1/15/2021	Undergraduate seniors, first year graduate students and those matriculating into a Ph.D. program (by fall 2018) are eligible for this fellowship	U.S. Citizens or Permanent residents only	https://www.krellinst.org/csgf/

Tau Beta Pi Fellowships	The Fellowship Program is Tau Beta Pi's single most important project for the advancement of engineering education and the profession. It is a time-proven idea which was pioneered by Tau Beta Pi in the honor-society field. Since the beginning, the purpose has been to finance, for a select group of members chosen for merit, a year of graduate study at the institutions of their choice. A distinguishing feature of Tau Beta Pi fellowships has always been that they are as free of binding rules as possible. Tau Beta Pi fellows are free to do graduate work in any field which will enable them to contribute to the engineering profession. The only specific duty of awardees is to write a report at the completion of the fellowship year summarizing their work.
