

Noel Quiñones is a Puerto Rican writer, educator, performer, and community organizer from the Bronx. As a writer, he's received fellowships from Poets House, the Poetry Foundation, CantoMundo, Tin House, Candor Arts, and SAFTA (Sundress Academy for the Arts). As a performer, he has featured at Lincoln Center, Harvard University, BAM, the Museum of Fine Arts, Houston, the 9/11 Memorial & Museum, and the Honolulu Museum of Art. His work has been published in POETRY, Green Mountains Review, the Latin American Review, Rattle, Kweli Journal, and elsewhere. He is the founder and former director of Project X, a Bronx-based arts organization, a poetry book reviewer for Muzzle Magazine, and a current M.F.A. candidate in poetry at the University of Mississippi. Follow him online @noelpquinones.